Edge Health Solutions Brings Advanced Visualization to the Edge

Through the integration of ResolutionMD™ Web, Edge Health extends imaging access to iPhone and other web-accessible devices

RICHMOND, BC Canada and CALGARY, AB Canada, August 14, 2008 - Edge Health Solutions, innovators of medical and dental practice management software developed specifically to leverage the power of Mac OS X, announces plans to integrate Calgary Scientific's ResolutionMD Web technology with its successful family of edgeMD™ and edgeDMS™ products. This potent combination will allow medical and dental practitioners to utilize web-enabled devices such as the iPhone, Mac notebooks and Modbook™ tablets to access medical imaging information for clinical analysis and instructive patient communication.

First introduced by Calgary Scientific in May, 2008 at the annual Society for Imaging Informatics Meeting (SIIM) in Seattle, ResolutionMD Web is breakthrough technology that allows users to access powerful advanced visualization functionality through a "zero-footprint" client – virtually any web-browser enabled device. ResolutionMD Web supports the increasing demand for ubiquitous access to today's high resolution medical imaging data without requiring dedicated visualization workstations.

"Apple's iPhone is dramatically changing the way people view web-based information. By combining the elegant simplicity of the iPhone user interface with Calgary Scientific's unique capability of serving up secure 3D medical imaging data to a web browser, we are introducing a new dimension to practice management workflow and patient interaction" stated Troy Spracklin, President and CEO of Edge Health Solutions.

"Edge Health is changing the face of medical practice management with its most recent releases of their Mac-based edgeMD and edgeDMS products. Now by incorporating our ResolutionMD Web technology into their solutions, the easy-to-use and wildly popular iPhone joins the Mac notebook as an indispensable 3D imaging device" remarked Byron Osing, CEO of Calgary Scientific Inc.

Edge Health Solutions, Inc. (EHSI) is a privately held Canadian software development company delivering one of today's most innovative practice management solutions exclusively for the Apple Mac® platform. EHSI harnesses the unparalleled power of Mac OS X® using its proprietary Edge Management Platform™ (EMP™) which provides a foundation specifically designed for the seamless integration of the most impressive core technologies and related services known to the healthcare industry. EHSI developed the world's first truly integrated tablet Mac solution with its Edge Clinical ChartBook™, a pen based clinical charting and patient education solution available for both its edgeMD (medical) and edgeDMS (dental) software offerings. Edge Health Solutions, Inc. is based in South Surrey, British Columbia.
